WELCOME TO TROMADANCE 2008!

McCURRY FILMS PRESENTS

THE 9TH ANNUAL TROMADANCE FILM FESTIVAL

NO ENTRY FEE!

On behalf of the entire TromaDance team, welcome to the ninth annual TromaDance Film Festival! TromaDance is an opportunity for everyone who's ever picked up a camera to have his or her work seen without the compromises required by an industry focused on star attachment and inflated budgeting. TromaDance is proud to be the first and only film festival of the people, for the people, and by the people.

We continue to feel honored and impressed by the quality of entries we receive each year. Congratulations and thank you to all of the filmmakers who submitted their fine work this year! We greet the strong response TromaDance receives each year as a testament to our mission to highlight and preserve truly independent art.

As has become the norm with TromaDance, this year we are increasing the selections of features, movies from all over the world and representations of all genres! We have also added a beautiful new venue, the Salt Lake City Library, for our focused program of features about DIY/Independent culture and Independent Voices.

We are very grateful to our sponsors & individual donors, without whom this truly independent film festival would not be possible! In particular, we would like to thank G4-TV and McCurry Films for their generous support of our cause. Finally, TromaDance would never be able to be a free, no charge, festival without our diligent, art-loving, unpaid volunteers, most of whom must sleep on the floor, subsist on junk food and learn to battle the barrage of studio terrorism in order to make this wonderful event possible. These hard-working souls deserve our special respect and thanks.

Since TromaDance's creation, we have seen fan-driven TromaDance Festivals sprout up in New Mexico, Indiana, Portland, New York and elsewhere. Also there are now Tromapaloozas, grass-roots concerts raising money and fighting on behalf of independent art all over America in Alabama, Nevada and Minneapolis! Thanks to all of the organizers of these festivals and concerts.

We believe that Sundance's claim that they have returned to their independent roots is misleading. Though this year's entries were produced outside the studio system, most of the films come armed with distributors, publicists and over sized promo posters ready to create a flurry of buzz, a storm of press, and a whiteout that blinds the movie going public from seeing those less talked about "other" movies screening at the festival. This is why now, more than ever, TromaDance is needed in the Park City festival period to counteract the clogged atmosphere of celebrity-obsessed, swag-hunting socialites with our filmmakers and volunteers who care about only one thing: the ART of filmmaking! TromaDance remains steadfast in doing its part to help independent film gain recognition and continue to flourish in Park City.

Welcome to TromaDance 2008. Now let's make some art!

VAMPIRA

D: Kevin Sean Michaels / documentary / 75 min. / USA

"Vampira was the first exaggerated woman I ever yearned to meet. As a child, she never looked scary to me; I thought she was pretty."

- John Waters

Kevin Sean Michaels' new documentary, VAMPIRA: THE MOVIE, chronicles the pitfalls of Mailla "Vampira" Nurmi living on the very edge of show business and the rise to celluloid cultdom some 50 years later. In 1954 her big break came when she played the "glamour ghoul" Vampira, who weekly wandered through a hallway of mist and cobwebs to greet her weekly viewers of obscure horror movies on a new medium called television. Her newfound fame led her to pal around with some of Hollywood's elite: Marlon Brando, James Dean and Anthony Perkins. But Vampira's show was abruptly cancelled. Two years later, in 1956, Nurmi appeared as Vampira again in the 1956 low-budget horror / sci-fi film, Plan 9 From Outer Space, directed by Edward D Wood Jr. (dubbed "the worst film of all time"). But you can't keep a good vampire down... featuring Interviews with Mailla "Vampira" Nurmi, Cassandra "Elvira" Peterson, Zacherly, Forrest J. Ackerman (Famous Monsters) Sid Haig (Spider Baby, Devil's Rejects), David J. Skal, Julie Strain, Jerry Only (Misfits) and many more!

Beloved and sheltered by his small town, A-Bo is transferred to Boston when a liberal college student decides it is his duty to obtain A-Bo's human and civil rights. An educ-ape-tional and riotous new movie from Boston's very own Frankie Frain, director of TromaDance fave, I Need To Lose Ten Pounds.
